BRIDGEWATER BANK APPOINTS COREY JOHNSON AS VICE PRESIDENT OF IT AND TRANSFORMATION

Calgary, ALTA. – Bridgewater Bank is pleased to announce the appointment of Corey Johnson as Vice President of IT and Transformation on March 23, 2026.

In this role, Johnson will guide the strategic direction of Bridgewater Bank’s technology infrastructure to ensure it supports the organization’s ambitious growth plans.

With a distinguished track record in digital banking solutions, systems modernization, building high-performing teams, and delivering strong business results, Johnson brings a wealth of expertise to the role.

He will play a critical role in advancing our technology strategy, overseeing the modernization of core banking platforms and digital channels to support long-term growth. Through a focus on innovation, and automation, Johnson will drive greater efficiency while elevating the experience we deliver to customers and brokers.

“Welcoming Corey to our team marks an exciting step forward,” said Dave Fromow, President of Bridgewater Bank. “His deep expertise in IT, digital banking solutions, and emerging technologies will be a tremendous asset to our organization. As we continue to grow, his leadership will play a critical role in guiding our IT team and shaping the strategic direction of the company. We’re very fortunate to have him on board.”

Johnson shared his enthusiasm for the opportunity, stating, “I am delighted to join Bridgewater Bank at such a pivotal moment in its journey. The chance to bring my experience to a team that is motivated to grow and make a real impact is exciting. I’m a firm believer in empowering teams and creating a culture of engagement, and I look forward to collaborating with the talented people here to advance our technology and deliver on our bold vision.”

Bridgewater Bank is confident that Johnson’s leadership and perspective will help move our technology strategy forward and support the next phase of our growth.
